“This program is indispensable to the professional development of all emerging healthcare leaders. As an administrator in an academic healthcare organization, I found the modules on economics, decision making, and strategic planning to be insightful and exceptionally practical. I would highly recommend this program to any of my colleagues.”

Who Should Attend

This program is designed for department heads and emerging leaders with responsibility for managing people, processes and systems within healthcare organizations.

Program Introduction

This extraordinary program is the result of a unique partnership between Michigan State University’s Broad College of Business and the Michigan Health & Hospital Association to create a valuable leadership program for existing and emerging healthcare leaders. This program focuses on skill mastery related to influence, strategic conversations and building trust, as well as developing knowledge of innovative care delivery and financing models. In the rapidly changing healthcare landscape, now is the time to learn how to seize strategic opportunities that can make a significant difference to you and your organization. The academy combines evidence-based practices from healthcare and business.

At the conclusion of the academy, participants will be able to:

- Apply leadership strategies and skills including decision-making, managing change, conflict resolution, teamwork, critical thinking and communication effectiveness.
- Discuss business analysis, strategic management and use of business tools.
- Identify emerging issues in healthcare management, best practices, and the connections between local issues and the greater healthcare environment.

You will learn best practices to sustain your organization in the future and provide you with the knowledge you need to enhance your leadership role at your healthcare organization.

“The MSU Healthcare Leadership Academy helped me to prepare for a promotion to Chief of Staff. I had to sacrifice to attend the onsite sessions and complete the homework assignments, but the curriculum helped to really prepare me for my new role. Without the support of my boss and organization I would not have had the opportunity to attend. I encourage the leaders of any institution to support their leader-physicians to attend this program.”

Unique Program Features

COACHING

MSU has assembled a highly experienced group of executive healthcare coaches who work from CEO level on down in top healthcare organizations both within North America and globally. Coaches will work with each participant on their career goals given your organization’s strategic priorities. The coaches selected have a track record of accelerating the careers of healthcare professionals.

ASSESSMENTS

Each participant will receive confidential, developmental 360-degree feedback from their stakeholders on their ability to influence and communicate effectively. Participants will complete two assessments:

1. The Language of Influence
2. Myers-Briggs Step II Assessment.

An executive coach will work with participants to review their assessment results and build a professional development plan.

ACTION LEARNING PROJECT

Each participant will work on an action project with specific implications for their professional development. This action project will allow participants to consider the business and evidence-based leadership skills they master in the program and apply them to their careers. They will also present their ideas to other participants and receive feedback on the merit and sustainability of their idea, given the current healthcare climate.

Location:

The February 24-25, 2017 module will be held at the Grand Traverse Resort in Traverse City. A group block of rooms is available for those participating in the Healthcare Leadership Academy. Please call (231) 534-6000 or (800) 748-0303 to reserve your room.

The March 20-22, 2017 module will be held at the James B. Henry Center for Executive Development in Lansing. A group block is reserved at the Candlewood Suites for our program (adjoining the Henry Center). Please call (517) 351-8181 to make your reservation.
